The Best Time to Water During a Heatwave

Yesterday, I found this article about watering your garden during a heatwave. According to Backyard Boss:

- Early morning is the best time to water your plants during a heat wave.
- If you can't water your plants in the morning, then the evening is the next best time.
- Watering in the middle of the day should be avoided as this is when the temperatures are at their highest and evaporation is at its peak.

International Pot Luck Party

Some garden members have been asking for another garden party and have suggested an international pot luck party. A potluck is a communal gathering where each garden member in attendance contributes a different, often homemade, dish of food, dessert, salad, specialty drink, etc. to be shared.

It may be too soon to hold this next weekend and I'm away August 10th thru the 14th. Please let me know if you are interested in attending the party on Saturday, August 20th from 2 to 6 PM, and let me know what you will contribute to the international pot luck party. Int'l Pot Luck Party Continued

Garden members are limited to two guests per member, Guests will not be required to contribute food, desserts, salads but should bring their own liquid refreshments. The Steering Committee will supply paper plates and napkins, plastic cups and plasticware. Garden members should bring serving utensils to serve their food.

Does anyone have card or folding tables that we may use to serve the food on?
